CHERYL! WHAT DO YOU HAVE TO SAY FOR YOURSELF?
Dear Cheryl
BY SARA ALGASE

Dear Cheryl,
There's this very annoying boy in my class. He follows me and my friends around and he makes kissing noises. He's a complete nerd! We've told him many times to get lost, but he won't leave us alone. We're absolutely fed up! -- Sick of Him, British Columbia, Canada

Dear Sick of Him,
The best way you can get rid of this love-sick pup is to set him up on a date. Yes, a date! There has to be someone in school who thinks "Mr. Annoying" is to die for. Maybe there's some girl out there who finds his kissing noises adorable and his nerdy personality extremely attractive. Set them up on a date. Hopefully he'll be so interested in his new sweetie-pie, he'll forget to annoy you and your friends. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm in love with this boy at school. I told my best friend and she told my teacher and then she told him! Everybody on my afternoon bus knows about it. Should I break up with him? -- Ginny, Cincinnati, OH

Dear Ginny,
If you want to date a guy, sooner or later, people are going to find out about it. People may talk about it and may even place bets on if and when you'll break up. That just comes with the dating territory. If you really like this guy, be proud, be honest and be brave. Hopefully the kids on your afternoon bus will all get social lives so they can stop talking about yours. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I can't get a boyfriend! I asked a boy out and he said no. Now he won't even talk to me. I asked two other boys out but they said no, too. I wear nice clothes but I can't do much with my hair. It's really short. I'm little and I wear glasses. What can I do? -- In Need of a Boyfriend, West Sand Lake, NY

Dear In Need of a Boyfriend,
Sometimes you have to face a bit of rejection in your quest for the ultimate boyfriend. Even I once got rejected. You may not believe it, but it's true. (Sure Tom Cruise is taken, but he still could have given me a chance!) Anyway, glasses and short hair are chic and you can use your small size to your advantage. Guys like short girls. It makes them feel tall even if they're not. Keep trying and someone will be smart enough to recognize a good thing. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm kind of feeling guilty. My best friend and I both like the same guy. I don't want to brag, but I think he likes me more. I want to keep my best friend but I also want to spend time with this guy. What should I do? -- Alex, Ontario, Canada

Dear Alex,
I think you need to ask this guy if he has any cute friends. If your friend likes one of his friends, then the four of you can double-date. Isn't that just the cutest? Hey, it works for Matt Damon, Winona Ryder, Ben Affleck and Gwyneth Paltrow, right? It can work for you, too. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
My friend Marcela and I have a problem with a boy in our class. He always flirts with us. Here's a list of what he does: He holds our books for us, smiles at us and picks up things when we drop them. I think that's sweet of him. But we don't know why he likes us so much. -- Brianna & Marcela, Los Angeles, CA

Dear Brianna & Marcela,
Why ask why when you can have your books carried for you? Obviously, this guy thinks you and your friend are hot stuff. So enjoy the attention. Let him carry your books, make your lunch, maybe buy you a present or two. It sounds like he wants to spoil you girls, so why not let him? -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm ten years old and I like one of my brother's best friends who's eleven. He's cute, smart and very, very funny. I think he likes me but I'm not totally sure. How can you tell if a guy likes you without asking? Do you think I'm too young to be liking boys?
-- Courtney, Memphis, TN

Dear Courtney,
There are many ways you can tell if a boy likes you without asking him. If he's shy, his face will probably turn red and babble on about things that don't make too much sense, or he'll just clam up completely. If he's the outgoing type, he'll probably start bragging about all his football trophies. (Yawn!) No, I don't think you're too young to like boys. I remember right after I was born and I was in my little hospital crib, there was this gorgeous baby boy next to me. Gosh, did he look cute in that little hat! Of course, I was always very mature for my age. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I think this boy named Dwayne likes me. He gave me his address and phone number. But he's very popular. He had a bunch of girlfriends before me. -- Dominique, Long Beach, CA

Dear Dominique,
Just because this boy's had a few girlfriends before you doesn't mean you won't sweep him off his feet. Just one date with you and he'll forget all about whatever-their-names-are. I suggest you spray on a little perfume (not so much as to make him sneeze) and remember to use plenty of eyeliner.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I had this boyfriend but I haven't seen him in a while. He's really cute but he's not in my school or any activities with me. I never see him but I have his phone number. What am I going to say, "Hi Alex, what's up?" He has lots of girlfriends. I can't stop thinking about him. -- Naomi, Reading, PA

Dear Naomi,
Sounds like a good opening line to me. Just give him a call and drop the hint that you're still interested. Give him the chance to ask you out or ask him out so you can see his cute face again. It's the nineties. We women can take charge of our lives and our telephones! -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There's a really hot guy in my grade and I'm crazy for him. I've tried everything to get him to notice me. What should I do (besides pinning a sign on my back)? -- Desperate, Toronto, Canada

Dear Desperate,
Hairspray, and lots of it. If you haven't caught this guy's eye yet, it must be because your hair hasn't been getting in his way. Pile your hair up like a pretty bird's nest and then spray it so it stays. You'll surely catch this guy's attention, even if he just wants to know how you got your hair to do that. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
Two-and-a-half months ago I told this guy, Ryan, that I liked him. He said he'd ask me out, but he needed some time because he just got out of a seven-month relationship. I'm thinking of asking him out again. His best friend said that Ryan would say yes if I asked him. -- Victoria, Virginia Beach, VA

Dear Victoria,
Two-and-a-half months should be enough for this guy to get his last girlfriend off his mind and start thinking about new opportunities. I mean, how many times can he blubber and listen to the same sad songs over and over? The best way to get an old girlfriend off his mind is to get a new, better and improved one. You can tell him I said that. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
Most of the girls in class like this one cute boy. Well, this cute boy likes my best friend and now she thinks she's so great. -- Jackie, Dawson, GA

Dear Jackie,
Instead of feeling bad about your friend's popularity, take advantage of it. Now that this cute boy likes her, he'll probably invite her to parties with— guess who? Other cute guys! There might even be someone there that you can call honey. So don't get depressed, get dressed! -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I have a friend who I thought liked me. But after we had a party in class, it seemed like he didn't. I get really sad and I don't eat that much. I can't forget about him. -- Down & Out, Santa Clarita, CA

Dear Down & Out,
Don't get stuck on this one boy, especially if he's not smart enough to realize how totally cool you are. There are lots of handsome, witty, rich, adorable fish, I mean guys, in the sea. You need to deep- condition your hair and get out there again. What you need is a handsome hunk to take your mind off that guppy.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There's this boy in my class who I really like. The problem is that three other people like him, too. What should I do to get him for myself?
-- Dearest Fan, Hamilton, Canada

Dear Dearest Fan,
You might want to give these gals a touch of the "greasy-hair blues." Get a little styling gel and "accidentally" drop a glop of it into their hair. Their hair will look so limp and lifeless, they'll have to go home early and wash it! Then you'll have the snuggle-bunny all to yourself. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There's a guy I've known since kindergarten. He knows I like him but he doesn't care about me. How do I make him care about me? It's tough to love a guy. -- Sara, Potomac, MD

Dear Sara,
Sure love is tough, but it has its fun parts, too. Maybe you're just going after the wrong guy. Not everyone is going to fall for you. (Some guys are just clueless.) You need a day at a spa and a complete make-over to feel like a new gal. Then date his best friend and make him jealous. Revenge is also fun. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I got detention for wearing a short skirt. Cheryl, how short is too short?
-- Henrietta, Ashland, OR

Dear Henrietta,
Short skirts are fun but you don't want to walk around in something that's really just a handkerchief pretending to be a skirt. Do remember to leave something up to the imagination! I suggest wearing clothing that's cute but won't get you thrown out of school. No one's going to notice you if you have to sit at home in your pajamas because you've been expelled!
